The grey zone between war and peace

Dimitar Bechev
12 May 2021

Russia and Turkey have moved from confrontation to cooperation. But their shared interests have had deleterious consequences for the Kurds in Syria and Crimean Tatars in Ukraine. Tensions continue in Nagorno-Karabakh and Libya. And their support for right-wing authoritarianism in the Western Balkans is undermining liberal democratic values.

Published 12 May 2021

Original in English
First published in Eurozine
Downloaded from eurozine.com (https://www.eurozine.com/the-grey-zone-between-war-and-peace/)
© Dimitar Bechev / Eurozine