Towards a sociology of absences and a sociology of emergence

Boaventura de Sousa Santos
10 February 2003

Boaventura de Sousa Santos

This paper makes a critique of the model of western rationality—the model of an indolent reason—and proposes the prolegomena of another model, that of cosmopolitan reason. The author seeks to base three sociological procedures on this cosmopolitan reason: the sociology of absences, the sociology of emergence, and the work of translation.

Published 10 February 2003

Original in Portuguese
First published in
Downloaded from eurozine.com (https://www.eurozine.com/towards-a-sociology-of-absences-and-a-sociology-of-emergence/)
© Revista Critica de Ciências Sociais Eurozine