Transmodernity, border thinking, and global coloniality

Decolonizing political economy and postcolonial studies

Ramón Grosfoguel
4 July 2008

Postmodernism as an epistemological project still reproduces a particular form of coloniality. A decolonial perspective requires a broader canon of thought that would require taking seriously the epistemic insights of critical thinkers from the global South. How can a "critical border thinking" that envisages a "transmodern world" moves us beyond Eurocentrism?

Published 4 July 2008

Original in English
First published in Revista Crítica de Ciências Sociais 80 (2008) (Portuguese version)
Downloaded from eurozine.com (https://www.eurozine.com/transmodernity-border-thinking-and-global-coloniality/)
© Ramón Grosfoguel / Revista Crítica de Ciências Sociais / Eurozine